THESEUS

Sofia Kominea Andreas Giovanos

To Sofia
To Andreas

In bygone times
Of kings and gods,
A prince was born
Whom the world still applauds.

King Aegeus of Athens
Was his father.
And the Queen,
Aethra of Troezen,
Was his mother.

His name was Theseus.
He was handsome and tall.
Chiron was his teacher
From when he was small.

Chiron was a centaur,
With a body both man and horse.
One of the greatest teachers
Of his time,
He was a tour of force.

When Theseus grew older,
His mother called him near:
“Under that heavy boulder,
You’ll find something very dear.

Your father’s sandals and his sword,
My child you’ll find to wear,
And like your father you shall be strewn,
Wreaths and laurels everywhere.”

*In bygone times
Of kings and gods,
A prince was born
Whom the world
Still applauds.*

This is the tale of Theseus,
A man whose wit, strength,
Cunning and remarkable
Adventures,
Forever in history remain...
